

ENGLISH LANGUAGE

KS5 Reading List

English language students will see huge benefits from reading widely. Reading will inspire students' curiosity as well as develop subject knowledge. Much of English language assessment is directly based on reading skills. Regular reading will develop these skills in a way that cannot be achieved in lessons alone.

Below is a list of texts that students could read to support their learning and understanding of key concepts.

General Interest	Accent and Dialect	Language Change	Language and Gender	Child Language Acquisition
'Mother Tongue' by Bill Bryson	'Does Accent Matter?' by Doctor John Honey	'The Stories of English' by David Crystal	'The Myth of Mars and Venus' by Deborah Cameron	'Listen to Your Child' by David Crystal
'Lost for Words' by John Humphreys	'Language and Region' by Joan Beal		'Man Made Language' by Dale Spender	'The Language Instinct' by Steven Pinker
'Eats Shoots and Leaves' by Lynne Truss			'Language and Gender' by Felicity Titjen
